GEN. CHANG IS SAID TO HAVE RICE HOARD HERE

Routed Hunan Tuchun Reported As Storing 100,000 Sacks

PROBE IS BEGUN

Chamber Of Commerce Committee Is On Trail

PRICE LOWERED

Report Of Plans To Buy Outside Is Cause Of Another Drop

Startling developments may mark the rice situation today as a result of an investigation started last night by the Chinese Chamber of Commerce of a report that General Chang Ching-yao, Tuchun of Hunan who was routed recently, has 100,000 sacks of rice stored in Shanghai godowns belonging to a foreign firm.

This is the third day allotted by the Chamber of Commerce manifesto for the holders of rice to list the quantities and last night several large rice holders were said to have failed, so far, to make a report. Officials of the Chamber urged that the reports be made at once.

"We do not propose to confiscate this rice," said Dr. Y. C. Tong, "but want to call it in for distribution at a reasonable price."

Effects of the proposal of various large interests here to subscribe millions of dollars with which to buy rice for import from Hongkong, Saigon and other places were further felt yesterday when the price dropped to $14.

WILL NOT RISE

"The price will not rise again," asserted Dr. Tong confidently. "The profiteers know that we mean business and they are frightened. And, too, we have warned the retailers that anyone who attempts to raise the price will be dealt with to the utmost of our ability."

RICE SLUMPS

With the report of the hoard of General Chang, together of detailed reports of the available number of sacks for sale at Shanghai, rice took a sudden slump yesterday. In Chapei, business was done as low as $13.30 for the best quality.

Yesterday's improvement in the situation was encouraging, and it is believed that, if proper supervision is placed over the dealers, they will be prevented from forcing the price up any further.

The total amount of cereal now in Shanghai, including the quantity said to have been hoarded by the Anfu Tuchun at Hunan, will be enough to last the city another month.

FIRST SUICIDE

The first case of suicide that has been made known to the public was recorded yesterday when Chang Ah-sung, an elderly man of a family at Tsaokaza, Pootung, slashed his throat with a razor, after having waited in the rain all day Thursday in an attempt to secure some rice at a Pootung cheap exchange and failed.

Chang had eight dependents in his family, none of whom had been properly fed since the first leap in the rice price. He had been a coolie, but being sick was unable to work and on Thursday sought to take advantage of the cheap exchange, after having pawned his last coat.

All day long he saw others making their purchases, but he was too sick to struggle his way through the thick of humanity that jammed the door. He came home at dusk, fatigued and disappointed. When he gazed upon the faces of his dependents, tears ran down his cheeks. Chang retired, and when morning came he was found dead in his bed with his throat cut.

TEACHERS PROTEST

Dissatisfied with the meagre salary they are getting, 30 public school teachers in Nantao and Chapei yesterday sent a request to the Educational Association of Shanghai for an increase of their pay. Their present salary is $30

Soviet Ambassador To U.S. May Be Deported

New photograph of Ludwig K. A. Martens, "Soviet Ambassador" to the United States, who, according to a despatch from Washington, has written to the State Department demanding to know if he would be recognised as the official representative of Soviet Russia in the United States.

Martens, it is said, offered to quit the country if the State Department would not recognise the Soviet.

Official Washington looks upon the letter as an attempt by Martens, scenting a probability that he would be deported, to acquiesce in the most graceful manner should the Immigration officials order him out of the country.

MINISTER ON FURLOUGH IN SHANGHAI; TO SAIL TUESDAY

Sir Beilby Alston With Sir Somerville Head On Way Home

CLIVE TAKES CHARGE

Recent Arrival From England To Take Charge Of Legation Affairs

Sir Beilby Alston, British Minister to China, arrived in Shanghai yesterday morning from Peking on his way to England, by way of America, for a furlough. He was accompanied by Sir Somerville Head, and Lady Head and their two children who are to travel with him to England. The party is being entertained at the Consulate by Sir Everard Fraser and Lady Fraser.

Upon his arrival the Minister and his party were met by a delegation of foreign and Chinese dignitaries, headed by Sir Everard Fraser and Mr. Hsu Yuan, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs.

RETURN IN NOVEMBER

Before taking his post at Peking, Sir Beilby served as Ambassador at Tokio and previously spent some time in Siberia. This explains why he is going on furlough so soon after taking up his new post in China. He is expected to return to the Orient some time in November.

Sir Somerville is also on furlough. He has been serving as second secretary at the Peking legation but will probably obtain a transfer at the end of his outing.

CLIVE IN CHARGE

In the absence of Sir Beilby his duties at Peking will be in the hands of Mr. Robert Henry Clive, consul of legation, who has just arrived from England where he was recently in the Foreign Office. He is not a stranger to the Far East although this is his first visit to China. He was in Tokio from 1905 to 1908 and has been a close student of the Orient.

Sir Beilby and his party are to sail for Canada on the Empress of Russia next Tuesday.

Child-Labor Rule Passed By Seamen

Genoa, June 29.—The International Seamen's Conference today passed a draft convention, providing that nobody under fourteen shall be employed on any vessel except school-ships, training-ships, or when other members of the family are working on the same ship.

PRESIDENT HSU WINS VICTORY; ANFUS FORCED TO COMPROMISE

Resignation Of Chin Yung-peng Accepted; Chow Shou-mou Will Suceed Him

MORE RESIGNATIONS

Yih Kung-cho To Be Minister Of Communications And Chow Tse-chi, Finance

BY NATHANIEL PEFFER
(Our Peking Correspondent)

Peking, July 2.—A mandate relieving Chin Yun-peng from office has been drafted. The President has also prepared a statement nominating Chow Shu-mou for Chin's office as Premier, but has not yet sent it over.

The three Anfu ministers are almost certain to resign as a result of the appointment of Chow.

It is reported today that Yih Kung-cho will get the Ministry of Communications and Chow Tse-chi the Ministry of Finance. This will be a victory for the President, as they belong to the faction which elected him.

It is not likely that Little Hsu will be deprived of his troops. A compromise provides that either the Anfu members give up their ministries or Little Hsu give up his troops.

REUTER DIFFERS

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 2.—Rumors that were current last night, that a hitch had occurred in the Government plan for the reconstruction of the Cabinet, are disproved by today's information.

Chou Shou-mou's nomination as Premier was submitted to Parliament this afternoon and will probably be voted on early next week, while a mandate is being issued this evening, permitting Chin Yung-peng to resign the Premiership but not the portfolio of War.

General Chang Tso-lin is expected to leave Peking in four or five days' time.

The Finance Ministry yesterday despatched $6,000,000 in Treasury notes to General Wang Chang-yuan and General Wu Kwang-hsin.

JOINT BOARD TO GOVERN MINES

No Nationalisation, Says Briton, But Control By Conference

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 30.—In the House of Commons today, moving the second reading of the Mines Bill, of Sir Robert Horne, the President of the Board of Trade, pointed out that the Ministry of Mines was not to be an independent Ministry but a branch of the Board of Trade.

He emphasised that there would be no nationalisation of the coal industry but control, both by the State and by committees, on which the workers would be represented.

A YEAR'S POWER

After August 31 the Minister would have the power for a year to regulate pit price, wages and the amount of exports and after that period the National Board would lay down general principles so that rates as far as possible would be uniform throughout the country.

Thus wages would be based, not on the selling price but on profits.

The Bill provides for an annual levy for five years of a penny per ton of coal, which will produce £1,000,000 annually. This sum will be devoted to the social welfare of mining communities.

Canada Rejects Navy-Budget Cut

(Reuter's Service)

Ottawa, June 29.—After an all-night sitting, the Dominions House of Commons rejected by 55 votes to 31 an opposition amendment reducing the naval estimates of two million dollars, necessitated by Canada's acceptance of Great Britain's offer of five warships.

The Liberal argument was that the expenditure was not warranted pending the adoption of a permanent policy, while the Government contended that the vote permitted the preservation of a naval nucleus until the permanent Dominions' policy had been considered at the Imperial Conference.

NO WORD FROM GENERAL STOLEN BY SINN FEINERS

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 29.—Up to the present no news has been received of Brigadier-General Lucas, who was captured with the two other officers by Sinn Feiners at Fermoy.

Troops at Fermoy broke barracks on Sunday night and wrecked a a number of shops in retaliation before the patrols arrived.

There were similar occurrences at Lismore, where there was trifle firing but no one was injured.

EMPRESS CAUSE OF NEW CHANGE IN P. O. HOURS

Tender To Leave Tuesday Morning Instead Of In The Afternoon

Another change was announced yesterday in the schedule for the sailing of the Empress of Russia and it is now announced that the tender will leave at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, instead of in the afternoon as was formerly intended. This has necessitated another change in the plans of American Postmaster Everett as to closing time of mails and Independence Day holiday hours.

CLOSE AT 4:30 P.M.

Registered mail will close for the Empress at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon and ordinary mail will not be received after 4:30 o'clock. However, any mail that is posted in American mail boxes during Monday night will be collected early Tuesday morning and despatched on the steamer. Such mail will be taken to Seattle for redistribution and may be a few hours later in reaching its destination than letters mailed for the announced closing time.

OPEN ON FOURTH

Although July Fourth comes on Sunday this year making Monday, July 5, a legal holiday, Mr. Everett believes that in justice to the people of the Settlement who wish to catch the Empress on her delayed sailing it is his duty to keep the office open during certain hours that day. Consequently the office will be closed at noon Saturday and re-opened on Monday at 10 a.m. and will remain open until 4:30 p.m. on that day.

BRITISH REVENUES DOUBLED; OUTLAYS LITTLE OVER HALF

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 30.—The revenue returns for the past quarter show a total of £314,986,452, as compared with £185,795,762 for the corresponding quarter last year.

The expenditure for the past quarter was £284,723,238 as compared with £401,199,080 for the corresponding quarter in 1919.

The surplus of revenue over expenditure was thus £30,258,214. The floating debt has been reduced since March 31 by £26,354,000.

Allies Give Pledge Of Friendship To Czecho-Slovakia

(Reuter's Service)

Prague, July 1.—A fete, given in honor of the foreign visitors at the Sokois Festival, was the occasion of significant expressions of friendship for Czecho-Slovakia by the representatives of Great Britain, France, the United States, Italy and Belgium.

M. Barthou, representing the French Government emphasised the bonds of mutual sympathy which existed between France and Czecho-Slovakia. Both countries, he added, had now the same duty to fulfil, that of depriving the common enemy of every possibility of undertaking further aggression in the future.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR RUSSO-JAP PACT IN EAST ARE STARTED

Chinese Decide To Recall Detachment Stationed At Blagovestchensk

WILL FORCE SEMENOFF

Chinese And Russians Exchange Dinner Courtesies And Compliments

("Russia" News Agency)

Blagovestchensk, June 29.—Russo-Japanese negotiations for an armistice were begun on June 26 at the Eastern Transbaikal front. The negotiations are proceeding very successfully. The Japanese have declared that the agreement arrived at would also be forced upon Semenoff.

The Chinese authorities here have decided to recall from Blagovestchensk a Chinese detachment which has been stationed in that city since the coup d'etat.

At the farewell dinner given by the Chinese Command in honor of the Russian authorities, the Chinese stated that they had became entirely convinced of the ability of the Russian authorities to maintain peace and order in the district, and to secure the interests of the Chinese population in the Amur district; and, therefore, there was no need to keep Chinese troops in the district.

APPROVE SYSTEM

At the banquet given by the district envoy of the Far Eastern Republic in honor of the Chinese authorities, the latter expressed their approval of the system of administration maintained in the Amur district.

A great amount of labor is reported to have been done on the Amur railway voluntarily by the workmen on Saturdays in and near Blagovestchensk.

ENGINEERS COMING

The arrival of a group of English and American engineers is expected here shortly from Tientsin. These engineers were invited to come to Russia by the Mining Department, to make surveys of gold fields in the district. The surveys will be carried out at the expenses of the local Russian authorities.

All is quiet on the Khabarovsk front. A Khabarovsk despatch reports the appearance of a band of Kalmikoff's followers in that city; who, with the help of the Japanese, are endeavoring to provoke another slaughter in that district.

CABINET ASSURED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, July 1.—A Coalition Cabinet is now assured. The Progressives will receive the three portfolios of Finance, Industry and Foreign Affairs.

A member of the Japanese Diplomatic mission stated today, "The formation of a coalition Government meets with the full approval of Japanese circles, in view of the fact that the Government is made up of more than one class. Nevertheless no change can be expected in the Japanese policy in the Far East.

Commons Discusses Britain's Mandatories

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 30.—In the House of Commons today Mr. Ormesby-Gore asked whether the enforcement of mandatory conditions in the ex-German colonies and the mandated ex-Turkish territories would be delayed until the Council of the League of Nations had approved the specific terms of each mandate.

Mr. Bonar Law replied that the question was still under discussion and that he hoped that a statement would be possible after the Spa Conference.

Mr. Bonar Law added that the mandates with regard to the former German territories in Africa and the Pacific were at present being drafted for the consideration of the Supreme Council. He said that he hoped that the mandates would be approved at Spa and submitted to the League of Nations shortly after.

France Ratifies Austrian Treaty

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 1.—The Senate today ratified the Austrian Treaty.

Paris, July 1.—M. Millerand, who will preside at the Conferences at Brussels and Spa, leaves Paris for Brussels this evening.

How The President Looks Today

Although several photographs of President Wilson have been taken since he began to take rides through the Capital, following his long illness, none had been taken except at a distance, with poor results. This excellent photograph, the first good one made since the President's health broke during his tour in behalf of the League of Nations and Peace Treaty, was made as the nation's chief was leaving the White House for a ride through the city. The President stopped the machine and permitted the camera man to get a close view of him. The President has aged considerably since last October.

Americans Rounding Out Program For Busy Day Celebrating July 4th

Festivities Are To Take Place On Day Following Anniversary, Which Falls On Sunday; Social Fetes, Baseball And Picnic On Bill

A busy but joyous day is planned for Monday, when Americans in Shanghai will celebrate Independence Day, which falls this year on Sunday. There will be social affairs of various kinds, baseball—and the climax is to come when the entire American colony is urged to assemble at the Recreation Grounds for an old-fashioned basked picnic.

Mr. Edwin S. Cunningham, the American Consul-General, will be at home to Americans and their friends from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Consulate General's residence, 13 Whangpoo Road.

Following the Consul General's "at home" will come the American Club's stag "open house," which is to begin at 12:30 o'clock and end at 3 o'clock.

RED HOT BASEBALL

Next on the program will be a red hot baseball game between an aggregation from the Navy and the Shanghai Regulars.

There will be, in the meantime, an Independence Day tea party at the Columbia Country Club at 5 o'clock.

When the ball game is over the picnickers will take possession of the field.

Plans were completed last night for the great basket picnic.

The committee invites every American to participate in making this Independence Day a memorable affair; they propose that private dinner parties be postponed and that nothing interfere with participation in this celebration.

Each family will bring its own supper and dishes, invite as many American friends as they wish and provide enough extra for four others.

CALL FOR ICE CREAM

The committee requests that each family bring an ice cream freezer of carefully prepared ice cream. It especially requests that only manufactured ice be used.

Tablecloths will be arranged to make a gigantic U. S.

The bugles for supper will sound at 6:30 and it is hoped that even those as far away as the Country Club will hear the call.

The following committee of women will be the hostesses of the occasion:

Mrs. J. C. McCracken, Mrs. Ho Lane, Mrs. R. B. Nichols, Mrs. George Fryer, Mrs. M. Benjamin, Mrs. Rugh, Mrs. E. Madsen, Mrs. A. C. Davis and Mrs. F. B. Hudson, Mrs. W. H. Lunt, Mrs. F. R. Sites, Mrs. Jackson Hammond, Mrs. A. G. Lochr, Mrs. R. I. Clapp, Mrs. McDonell, Mrs. J. B. Sawyer, Mrs. J. I. Brenneman, Mrs. W. W. Morris, Mrs. P. J. Clark, Mrs. B. C. Haile, Mrs. A. S. Tenney, Mrs. E. C. Stocker, Mrs. A. C. Davis, Mrs. N. E. Lurton, Mrs. W. A. B. Nichols, Mrs. James Machelt, Mrs. F. J. Seeman, Mrs. F. J. White, Mrs. H. H. Morris, Mrs. Crane, Mrs. W. W. Peter, Mrs. Shock.

Children's sports will begin at 5 o'clock. Mr. Charles Glaugue will be in charge. Every American kiddie in Shanghai should come out and try for the red or blue ribbon of his or her particular class. Extra prizes of boxes of candy will be given winners. There will be served pure ice cold drinks made under careful supervision, eliminating all possible chance of illness.

At 8 p.m. The Chinese lanterns will be lighted and a great screen will be stretched in the open air. Mr. Robertson and Mr. Cole, of the Lecture Department of the Y.M.C.A. will show some new moving pictures of Red Cross work in France and Belgium, also some new comic pictures. Patriotic and other familiar songs will be thrown on the screen from time to time and Mr. Glauque will lead the grand chorus of 2,000 patriotic American voices.

'SYMPATHY FOR IRISH,' IS PLANK IN PLATFORM

Bourbon Sub-Committee Submits Final Report To Main Body

HOT ARGUMENT

Balloting Postponed Til Platform Is Accepted By Convention

McADOO SILENT

Tentative Program Favor Suffrage And League; Dodges "Liquor"

Late Bulletin

(Special To THE CHINA PRESS)

San Francisco, July 2.—A motion to ballot, proposed by the Cox adherents, was defeated.

Champ Clark is being groomed to run against McAdoo, should the latter's strength develop.

Bryan still controls the veto power.

It is reported that Administration forces are opposed to Mr. McAdoo for President.

(U. S. Naval Radio)

San Francisco (via Guam) July 1.—"Sympathy for the aspirations of the Irish people"; unconditional endorsement of the League of Nations; approval of suffrage for women; and apparently complete omission of any stand for or against Prohibition, feature the report of the subcommittee on planks, handed to the platform committee of the Democratic national convention this afternoon.

At a late hour tonight the larger committee was still wrangling over the report, the debate centering upon the degree of support to be given to the League plank. Delegates holding to Mr. Bryan's opinion, that entry into the League should be contingent upon reservations made in the U. S. Senate, put up a long and bitter series of orations in support of their contentions.

Other prominent planks in the platform proposed by the subcommittee include:

Condemnation of Republican Congress for actions during and since the war;

A pledge to punish and abolish profiteering;

Reaffirmation of Democratic tariff doctrines;

Advocacy of the budget system of national expenditures, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury;

Commendation of postal service, with recommendations for increased salaries, extensions of air-mail and parcel-post system;

FOR "FREE SPEECH"

Endorsement of the principle of free speech, save where detrimental to the nation or to the tranquility of labor;

Arraignment of strikes or lockouts which jeopardise paramount public interests;

Opposition to compulsory arbitration of industrial disputes;

Advocacy of readjustments of salary-schedules for government employes;

Endorsement of separate citizenship for married women;

Favoring extension of foreign trade and pledging a policy which would encourage and extend the merchant marine;

Recognition of new Mexican government, when the authorities there shall have proved their ability to maintain law and order;

Reiteration of President Wilson's principles of self-determination for smaller nations;

FREE ARMENIA

Advocacy of independence for Armenia;

Endorsement of independence for the Philippines, "without unnecessary delay," when islands are ready for self-government;

Advocacy of a "liberal policy" toward Hawaii, with greater development rights and privileges for the inhabitants;

Deprecation of Pre-convention political expenditures on the part of Republican candidates, with recommendation of Federal regulation of this practise;

Praise for Federal Trade Commission.

NO BALLOT YET

All chance of a ballot today vanished in the maelstrom of words which swirled around the good ship "Platform." The committee worked into the wee sma' hours of the morning and then, worn with oratory and argument, adjourned until ten o'clock tomorrow morning, when it is hoped that the platform may be finally nailed together for presentation to the convention.

Meanwhile several new names were offered in nomination, among them that of Secretary of Agriculture Meredith, who is said to be the choice of the convention for Vice President, and Burton Harrison, Governor of the Phillipines.

SHORTEST SPEECH

The speech made in connection with the nomination of William G. McAdoo is said to have been the shortest on convention records. His sponsor merely stated that those rumors tending to convey the impression that Mr. McAdoo would not accept the nomination were falsehoods, perpetrated by enemies of the party, and offered his favorite's name to the convention.

From the Atlantic seaboard, where Mr. McAdoo remains in semi-seclusion, a despatch came today stating that the candidate "maintained a Sphinx-like silence" and had "nothing to say" to the army of newspaper men who searched him out and requested a statement.

OPPOSE McADOO

An overnight caucus, reported to have been called for the purpose of consolidating an anti-McAdoo combination, failed to agree upon a choice of candidate. The only effect of the meeting seemed to be a stiffening and solidification of the administration forces in the convention.

The inevitable "dark horse" has appeared on the horizon in the shape of Vice-President Marshall. It is not thought likely that Mr. Marshall could obtain the nomination, but he is being talked of as the man who could probably break the anti-McAdoo combination, if formed.

HARRISON NAMED

(Reuter's Service)

San Francisco, July 1.—The fourth day of the Democratic Convention was devoted to the presentation of the names of Senator Glass, Mr. John, W. Davis, Ambassador to Great Britain, Senator Furnifold Simmons and Mr. Francis B. Harrison, Governor-General of the Philippine Islands. The Convention adjourned at 8 p.m.

WILD ENTHUSIASM

San Francisco, June 30.—In the shortest nomination speech in the history of the United States, Mr. McAdoo's name was placed before the Convention today.

Scenes of enthusiasm followed. The nominator declared that the rumors that Mr. McAdoo would not serve, if nominated, could be dismissed as the work of enemies. The names of Mr. Meredith, the Secretary of Agriculture, and Governor Smith of New York were also placed on the list of nominations.

McADOO ACCLAIMED

San Francisco, July 1.—Out of the ten potential candidates named Mr. McAdoo was received with the greatest enthusiasm. The old-line democratic leaders have already begun planks to prevent Mr. McAdoo's nomination, and to force the nomination of Champ Clark or some other "dark horse."

These leaders are seeking the aid of Mr. Bryan, who encompassed the defeat of Champ Clark at Baltimore and forced the nomination of President Wilson; but they admit that they will have difficulty in stemming the present tide in favor of Mr. McAdoo.

ADOPTS "SECRETS" ACT

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 30.—The House of Lords today adopted the Official Secrets Act, embodying certain amendments, introduced as a result of a discussion with press representatives, and providing that anybody retaining without authority official documents for any purpose, prejudicial to the safety and interests of the State, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

A Royal Wedding

Count and Countess de Polignac

The wedding of the Duchess of Valentios beautiful daughter of the Prince of Monaco, and the Count Pierre de Polignac, member of an old French family, which took place at Monte Carlo recently, was one of the most fashionable affairs in the history of the famous resort. The Prince of Monaco, according to recent reports, may shortly resign his rule. The Count de Polignac is a descendant of the old family which was a power during the reign of Louis XVI. They were forced to flee the country when the French Revolution broke out.

Soviet's International And Military Position Given By Moscow President

(Russia News Agency)

Moscow, June 27.—The Conference of Chairmen of the district executive committees of Soviets of the Moscow province was closed yesterday. In his closing speech the president of the Moscow Soviet, Kameneff, thus described the Soviet's international and military position at the present moment:

"The center of the international situation is now in London, where negotiations are proceeding between Krassin and Lloyd George and other ministers.

"Lloyd George is trying to give to these negotiations the character of commercial agreements; but he is already compelled to talk not only of trade, but of peace as well.

"We must, however, not forget that Lloyd George, while recognising Soviet Russia, is carrying on a war policy in Ukrainia.

"If we weaken on our Polish and Crimean fronts; if a ray of hope glimmers before the Western European capitalists, of the possibility for the overthrow of Russian Soviet power, there is no doubt that the London negotiations will fall through, and that all the forces of the imperialists will be used in helping our enemies.

OUTLINES HIS VIEWS

"But if we beat Pilsudsky and smash up Vrangel, then Lloyd George will convince Millerand of the necessity of concluding peace with Soviet Russia."

Speaking of the military position of Soviet Russia, Kameneff declared that this position was very strong, due to the successful activities carried on by the "Red" army on all fronts.

As a joint sitting of the Kharkov city and district Soviets, Mr. Rakovsky reported on the state of affairs in Ukrainia. He pointed out the marked improvement in the attitude of the working masses in Ukrainia. A definite turn in the attitude toward the Soviet power is widely manifest in villages.

This is proved by the satisfactory change in the supply of corn. Some of the districts of the Kiev province which were considered the least in sympathy with the Soviet power have supplied 100 percent of the corn demand and over 100 percent of the amount of flour demanded.

PLAN MOBILISATION

At a general conference of the Moscow factory committees a report was presented on the mobilisation of the entire population of Moscow for the preparation of fuel and on the mobilisation of all the peasants for the transport of timber into Moscow. The second report made referred to the question of the reorganisation of the Technical Institutions.

For the sake of giving every worker the opportunity of improving his skill, all the workers between the ages of 18 and 40 will be called upon to go through short-term courses of professional and technical education.

A great victory of the communists in Esthonia is just reported. The congress of agricultural workers has expressed itself by an overwhelming majority for an expropriation, without payment, of the land belonging to landowners as well as that belonging to peasants, for the purpose of dividing it among the landless.

PROLETARIAT DICTATORSHIP

A resolution demanding the proclamation of the dictatorship of the proletariat was carried with enthusiasm. Practical measures are being taken for the realisation of agrarian reforms, based on new principles.

The general committee of the trade union, which is heading the labor movement in Esthonia, has joined the Third International.

A general strike of agricultural laborers has been declared in Italy. Open fighting between the troops and the people is of daily occurrence. Since the strike was declared all the agricultural laborers have armed themselves.

The Daily Herald gives details of the sitting of the Hungarian National Assembly. Count Apeirony called upon the country to do everything possible to regain foreign sympathies for Hungary.

"Atrocities committed in Hungary have compelled the whole world press to turn its back upon us," he said, sooner or later England will be governed by the Labor party and the English workers will get the treaty reconsidered."

The Minister of Agriculture remarked that the "white terror" has united the entire population in a common hatred of the Hungarian authorities.

Hungary is said to be on the eve of a peasant revolution.

British Supreme Court

Before The Acting Judge

IN RE BURTENSHAW

For the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank and Banque de l'Indo-Chine, Mr. A. C. Holborrow and Mr. Langley Smith for the trustee, Mr. K. E. Newman; for an unsecured creditor, Mr. S. H. McKean.

Judgment was given as follows:

This is a motion in Bankruptcy transferred from the Provincial Court at Hankow by order to this Court for argument and decision. It arises in the matter of the estate of one Burtenshaw, deceased, which is being wound up as a bankrupt estate. The claimants are the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank and the Bank de l'Indo-Chine, and therefore there are two motions, this judgment covers them both. The motion was served on the Trustee in the bankruptcy, and he asks for a declaration that the claimants are to be ranked as secured creditors in respect of certain goods found in the bankrupt's godowns. The practice followed in this matter seems to be the same as that adopted in the matter of one Bavier, heard and decided in this Court in 1910. The trustee, having doubts on the claims made by the bank, declined to admit or reject their proof and left them to move the Court for a declaration of their rights. I think this is an inconvenient practice: and its inconvenience and possible injustice was shown in the course of the proceedings before me; for on the last argument, one unsecured creditor applied to be heard on the matter; and his application was resisted by the present claimants. I think the trustee, if he had doubts, ought to have rejected the claim and left the Bank to appeal against his decision: on that appeal, he would have doubtless taken the view of the unsecured creditors, who are vitally interested in the matter. If he had no doubts, he should have admitted the claim, which would still have left the unsecured creditors or some of them, the right to appeal. As it is, the position put to me was that there was no power on this motion for the Court to hear the unsecured creditors at all: though it is clear that, after the Banks, they are the persons really interested. The case of Ex parte Kearsley in re Genese (17, Q.B.D.I) shows that a dissentient minority of unsecured creditors has the power to bring their views before the Court, though the trustees may have acted in accordance with the direction given him by the majority. In this case, there is no suggestion that there is a Committee of Inspection or that the Trustee has called a meeting of creditors on this matter for instructions. Under all the circumstances of the case, I decided to hear the unsecured creditor: he has filed no evidence before me, though it is clear he could have done so. I do not think he has shown me any sufficient ground for granting any further adjurisment in the matter.

It seems the Banks concerned hold "letters of lien" from the bankrupt in respect of certain goods: these documents are in somewhat different form. The Hongkong Bank's is dated November 30, 1919, the French Bank's December 6, 1919. The bankrupt died on December 20 1919, and an administration order in bankruptcy was made on January 12, 1919. The goods concerned were in the bankrupt's godown and he kept the keys: though the banks (at all events one of them) made periodical inspections. The documents are not registered as Bills of Sale under our Order in Council, 1904. It is urged that the documents are not Bills of Sale, and therefore do not require registration: further, that the goods are not within the order and disposition clause in bankruptcy as a custom of the trade in Hankow with reference to the financing of "Import Cargo" prevents the operation of that clause.

QUESTION RAISED

I raised the question of the Bills of Sale provision of our Order in Council myself, inasmuch as the matter had to some extent been before this Court in a case from Tientsin, where the Provincial Court held that a similar document was a bill of sale and therefore required registration for its validity and no appeal was made from that decision. However, on a careful consideration of the cases quoted to me and specially of In re Hamilton Young and Co. 1905. 2.K.B. 772, by which I am bound, I hold that these documents do not require registration as bills of sale. I cannot separate the facts in that case from those here, and I therefore so hold. But that is not enough for the banks in this case: the bankruptcy law includes for the purposes of division amongst creditors property in the possession order and disposition of the bankrupt in his trade or business by the consent and permission of the true owner, under such circumstances that he is the reputed owner thereof: and it is this matter that has caused me the difficulty. The facts before me are contained in the affidavits of the managers of the banks and of the trustee and the admissions of the trustee. The course of business of the banks in financing import cargo is described by Mr. Geary Gardner as follows: The shipper draws on the merchant in Hankow for the price of the goods sent by him: the drafts and bills of lading are forwarded to the bank at Hankow: if the importer in Hankow cannot meet the drafts he obtains a loan from the bank there and requests the bank to release the goods. This the bank does on the execution of letters of lien, in which the importer undertakes to hold the goods as the agent of the bank. The goods are then stored in the importer's godowns under his complete control, though the bank makes periodical inspections of them. The importer has the sale and disposal of the goods. The goods, the subject of these claims, are kept in a locked and separate godown in no way connected with any retail business of the importer.

QUESTION OF GOODS

It is clear that such goods are goods in the bankrupt's trade and business. On the other hand they were (to use the words of Bigham, J. in In re Hamilton Young and Co., 1905. 2 K.B. on p.390.) the goods of the bank in the sense that they had a charge upon them. It is further clear that the bank consented to the goods being in the order and disposition of the bankrupt in his trade and business, but did they do so under such circumstances that the bankrupt became the reputed owner of them? Did the banks consent to a state of things necessarily leading to the inference of ownership by the bankrupt? And in considering that the real relation of the parties must be taken into consideration: (In re William Watson and Co., 1904, 2, K. B. 753.) The parties here were in fact principals and agents, but sales made by the agent must not take place under circumstances from which customers generally will be entitled to presume that the goods must be, not may or may not be, the property of the bankrupt (per Vaughan Williams, L. J.) I have no doubt that apart from the custom or usage alleged these goods are within the reputed ownership clause: But it is said that the regular custom of trade in Hankow is that goods in merchants' godowns are known to be often pledged to the banks. Now the reputation of ownership may be rebutted by the notoriety that goods of the particular description are by the usage of trade in the possession of persons who are not the owners of them: but it is not enough to establish a usage in one market only: [In re Goety Jonas and Co. 1898, 1, Q. B. 787, and the remark of Brett M. R. in ex pte Reynolds, in re Barnett, 15, Q. B. D. on p. 191]. Here it is known the bankrupt traded in Shanghai and Tientsin as well as in Hankow (see my judgment on the first motion in this matter); but I have evidence on these motions only as to Hankow. Then the goods described are many of them (e.g. safes and electric fans) articles which are ordinarily sold retail; and they consist in the godown of goods partly bulk imported and partly goods stored on shelves and some in bins. The bankrupt was apart from the lien to the bank the owner; he had absolute and entire control of them: there is no suggestion that he was only an agent selling on commission (see "In re Bavier" in 1908). In my opinion the evidence before me of the custom or usage of trade in Hankow is entirely insufficient to take the goods out of the reputed ownership clause. I observe that according to the facts as stated in the above mentioned case of Hamilton Young and Co., the goods which reached India as import cargo were stored in a godown rented by the Bank on which the Bank's name appeared and the keys whereof were the Banks' property and in their possession.

I therefore refuse the motions of the Banks: and they must pay the costs of the Trustee. As to the unsecured creditor who appeared here, I think that he is entitled to receive them out of the estate and I so order.

New York A Wicked City, Girl On First Visit Carries Revolver

MISS MARGIE BURKE

Miss Margie Burke, fifteen years old, of Orange, N. J., made a trip to New York City in search of employment. Miss Burke, according to her story, heard of the wickedness of the city and brought along a revolver to protect herself. The girl was taken into custody at the Travelers' Aid Society, in New York, for carrying a revolver. Magistrate McAdoo, before whom Miss Burke was taken, remarked that the girl apparently did not realise the seriousness of her offense, and adjourned the case for a week to permit an investigation of her story.

CAMPAIGN FOR S.V.C. "ROOKS" GOING STRONG

American Company To Have Double Strength By Independence Day

Every man in the American Company, S.V.C., is making an earnest effort to obtain one recruit for the organisation before July 4 and it was stated last evening by Lieut. Paul Chaton, recruiting officer, that it appears almost certain that the objective will be gained: It is proposed to double the strength of the organisation before Independence Day.

So enthusiastic have the members of the company been that some of them have obtained several applications. They will turn in but one each at this time, however, as it is the plan that the strength shall be doubled by the efforts of each soldier in the company. Extra applications are to be held until July 6 when they will be turned in by the workers who have exceeded the requirements for the present contest.

This plan has inspired the workers for membership to fresh efforts and there is great rivalry among the men to see which one can turn in the greatest number of names on July 6.

Recruiting for the Company has not been a difficult task, according to Lieut. Chaton, since the purposes and working of the organisation has been explained to American men here. He said many eligible men have heretofore witheld their applications merely because they did not understand what the American Company, S. V. C., stands for.

AMERICA FIRM FOR JUSTICE IN WORLD

Lord Reading's Declaration Is Cheered By International Law Association

WHEELER ON LEAGUE

New Yorker's Letter To Conference Predicts Covenant Will Be Ratified

Portsmouth, England, May 27.—The League of Nations was the subject of discussion at the opening session here today of the twenty-ninth conference of the International Law Association. The Earl of Reading, Lord Chief Justice, and former British Ambassador to the United States, presided. There were numerous foreign delegates present, but two Germans, who were expected to come, had not yet reached Portsmouth.

An interesting paper was presented in the name of Everett P. Wheeler, the New York lawyer, in which Mr. Wheeler expressed the belief that the United States would yet ratify the League.

The American Ambassador, John W. Davis, will preside at tomorrow's session, when the laws of war at sea will be discussed.

Lord Reading, speaking at the luncheon of the Association, said that the League of Nations, which he trusted would in the future represent international law, was the hope of humanity. To sceptics and scoffers, who said that the League would not accomplish much, he would say that, if the League was not to succeed—if it could not give a ray of hope in ending war—there was no alternative.

LORD READING SPEAKS

Lord Reading, in his Presidential address, expressed the belief that international laws would never recover from the blow struck during the war, unless the League of Nations became an effective organisation. It was a melancholy reflection that, while international jurists and men of high ideals were striving to prevent war, nations by every means in their power tried to outdo each other in the strength of their death-dealing forces. But out of the struggle had come a great epoch-making document—the covenant of the League of Nations.

"I do not say that it is a perfect instrument," he added, "it is, nevertheless, a great document, though the hands that were set to it at the time, are not the hands of those who ratified it.

"What America will do in the future, it is not for us to judge or prophesy. She will decide for herself, according to her own views, and according to the views of her own people.

"But of this I am convinced—whether she signs or does not sign, she will remain the supporter of justice and truth in the future, as she has done in the past, and those tribunals or nations associated in the League will be able to rely on her when they give their views founded upon justice."

These remarks were received with cheers.

FAVORS COURT OF JUSTICE

Lord Reading emphasised the importance of the commission sitting to devise a plan for the permanent court of international justice. Whether the League would succeed in its ultimate aim or not, he was not one of these who despaired that war could not be abolished by any means, but he believed that some time must elapse before it could be achieved.

The League would prevent some wars, beyond all question, be held, and disputes between nations that could be settled, would be settled. There were some matters the League could not dispose of, but even there, the moral value of the League's opinion would have its effect in the world.

Mr. Wheeler's paper on "The League of Nations and the Constitution of the United States," was read at the evening session by U. H. Parratt. The writer held that the United States would not finally refuse to join the League.

In his view, America found herself in the position of the man whose judgment had been convinced of the truth and justice of a certain proposition, but who shrank from the logical consequences when he first preceived what they were.

This hesitation was "not unnatural in a democracy," and the writer trusted that the European friends of America would be patient, and he believed that the covenant of the League would yet be ratified by the United States.

Morgan Offer Pleases Americans In London

House Tendered As The Ambassador's Residence Is Regarded There As Suitable

London, May 26.—American diplomatic circles here heard with a good deal of gratification today of J. P. Morgan's offer of his London mansion as the American Embassy.

Secretary Colby's comment that the house is not large enough for both residence and office is held to be beside the point, as there is already an American chancery in Grosvenor Gardens, held by a United States Government lease for a term of years.

LONG-FELT WANT

The need of an official home for the American Ambassador has been felt by American residents in London for a long period. Diplomatic representatives of other nations have possessed stately embassies which, like the French, German and Russian, have become landmarks of London, as the British Embassy is of Washington. There is no doubt here that the prestige of the United States would be greatly increased if her Ambassador could have a similar official home.

STIRS CONGRESS

Mr. Morgan's offer moreover, it was pointed out today by an American particularly qualified to discuss it, was of especial value because it would bring up for settlement the principle that Congress should undertake the responsibility of keeping up the embassy. That would relieve the American Ambassador of a heavy burden and make the choice of a fitting representation of the United States very much easier.

OTHERS AVAILABLE

The Morgan mansion is considered to be quite suitable for the American Embassy, but The New York Times correspondent understands that, even if it is decided not to accept it, it would be very easy at the present time for America to acquire a fitting home for her Ambassador. A great many of the first London houses are now in the market and their owners would be glad to sell to the American Government.

GOLF RIVALS TO MEET IN ENGLAND

Cornishman And Champion Are Forced To Book Sailings On Different Ships

New York, May 28.—Jim Barnes, the holder of several professional golf championships and chief rival of Walter Hagen, sailed for England to compete in the British open event on the good ship Finland on May 15. Long Jim is a Cornishman by birth and will be joined on the other side by his mother. Strangely enough, but wholly without significance, is the fact that Hagen and his party will sail the same day, but on a different boat. The two are still warm friends, except on the links. Barnes was unable to obtain accommodations on the Carmania, which will carry the national champion to Britain.

CHICAGO MATCH PLANNED

Hagen, who is making his headquarters nowadays in New York, is spending part of this week at Deal, N. J., where the pro there, Paddy Doyle, is piloting him around the course. In a match on Sunday Hagen, paired with Art Beebe of Long Branch, lost to Doyle and Bayard Beebe, also of Long Branch, by 1 up.

An announcement of importance to metropolitan professionals was made last night by Aleck Pirie, Secretary of the P. G. A. The qualifying round for the local quota of pros who will play in the championships at Chicago will be held July 19 or 26, with indications favoring the latter date, which is the Monday before the metropolitan open tourney. The test will be held on both the Richmond County and Fox Hills courses on Staten Island, eighteen holes on each.

VETERANS TO QUALIFY

Pirie said last night that, according to word received from England, Vardon and Ray probably would insist on qualifying for the national event rather than accept the P. G. A.'s invitation to compete without a test. They have indicated in letters a thoroughly sportsmanlike attitude over this matter and will accept no honor without acquiring it in competition.

George Fotheringham, the Richmond County pro, was yesterday elected Secretary of the metropolitan section of the P. G. A. Heretofore Pirie, the National Secretary, has handled all work; but henceforth New York and vicinity will have the same sectional representation as Chicago, New England, the Southeast, southwest and Pacific Coast.

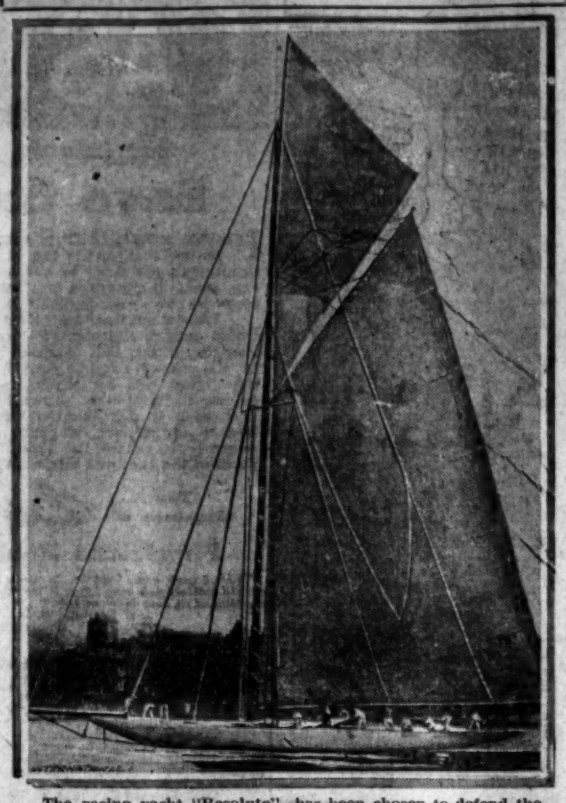
Will Defend "America" Cup



The racing yacht "Resolute" has been chosen to defend the "America" Cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, "Shamrock IV," which will represent England.

These are the two yachts which were to have raced in 1914, but were withdrawn from competition when war was declared.

Tad's Tidbits

A bunch of fight bugs were seated around a flock of nut sundaes at the Friars Club in New York recently and of course the subject chirped on was boxing. It finally narrowed down to the original Jack Dempsey. Some said that he was husky. Others said he was frail. Others swore that he was big fellow and still others that he was small. They finally got Jim Corbett out of the billiard room to ask him things.

It happened that Jack Dempsey, "The Nonpareil," was Jim Corbett's hero.

"Jack Dempsey," howled Corbett, when they asked him if he knew anything about him.

"Huh!" piped Jim, putting his cue into the hand of the listening waiter, and grabbing a chair. "I know almost everything about that guy!

"Say, when I was nineteen and boxing daily at the Olympic Club in Frisco, the one fellow in my mind's eye all the time was Jack Dempsey. I didn't tell anyone, but I'd spend my last dollar to see that fellow fight and I didn't miss him once when he was West. I used to sneak into his training quarters to pipe him off. Of course he didn't know me. Only the boys at the Olympic Club and a few others knew that I loved boxing. At that time I never even thought of becoming a professional.

COPIED HIS STYLE

"I'll tell you boys the one thing though, and that's this: Whatever rep I made as a feinter, sidestepper and ducker, I copped from Jack Dempsey. He was the marvel of his time. Pale, trim like a race horse, quiet and cool—that was Dempsey.

"One day as I was boxing with some fellow at the club, Mike Cleary, the heavyweight, came in with Dempsey. They looked around and Dempsey said to Cleary: 'Let's get up a little perspiration. Come on and box a few rounds.' Cleary had a sore mouth, I remember, and didn't want to box, but suggested to Dempsey that I'd do.

"I'll give you my word I sort of shook at the idea of boxing my hero. Well, he finally stripped, and we got to going. He didn't know at the time that I knew most all of his moves and feints. I did.

"He stood with his head way back and feinted like Tommy Ryan. I guess it must have been two or three minutes before one of us made a lead. He wanted me to come in at him, but I didn't want to fall for any tricks in front of my admirers, and just waited him out.

"Quite a crowd collected when they heard that Jim Corbett was boxing Jack Dempsey. Gee, they expected wonderful things because at the time I was amateur champ of the club.

"Well, we got warmed up finally. I remember it was just 6 o'clock at night. When I say that we got warmed up I mean that we got to going at top speed. It got so good that they began yelling to fellows to watch us. We had no rest period, but just kept at it.

"Jack would clout me and a bit later I'd catch him. Members came running out of the bathroom with towels over their heads. Other fellows ran in from the billiard room with cues in their hands. It was the oddest audience you ever saw.

MADE CORBETT'S NOSE BLEED

"Dempsey and I went steadily until 6:30 o'clock. I remember it ended with my nose bleeding all over me. Jack hooked me with his forearm. You know, he was a wrestler and knew more holds than Gotch. That was the first time that my nose ever bled in my life. I was as mad as a wet hen, but Dempsey grabbed my arms and said: 'Let's not be bad friends.'

"He put his arms around me and we went into wash up. He asked my name, how long I'd been boxing, how tall I was and how heavy I was. He said:

"'Jim, I wish that I was your size and had your future.' We weighed then. Dempsey tipped the beam at exactly 144 and I weighed 160 pounds. We became great friends after that, boxing often and having quite a laugh each time about me losing my goat over the bloody nose.

"What a marvel he was! In his prime he was all by himself. He was the lightest middleweight champion that ever lived, too. He never weighed more than 148 pounds."

Regulars To Clash With Bolsheviki

The stage is all set for today's game between the Regulars and the Bolsheviki. The game has been postponed twice due to the weather but it now looks as if the sun will smile upon the earth and more particularly on the Race Course which portion of the globe has had more than its share of moisture, so the baseballers declare.

Umpire Joe Busch will ring the bell at three thirty this afternoon and then the bitter struggle will start. A good game is promised by both team managers so it behooves the fans to be on hand if they do not wish to miss a good exhibition of the game of swat the spheroid.

Fifth Of New Norwegian Merchant Fleet Slides Down Ways In Shanghai

Owners And Builders Pay Tribute To Mrs. Blechynden And Present Her With Diamond Pins When She Christens New Vessel With Name 'Dux'

The Dux, fifth of a fleet of staunch ships being built by the New Engineering and shipbuilding Company for a Norwegian Company sped down the ways after its christening yesterday afternoon and floated out upon the waters of the Whangpoo. The new ship was christened by Mrs. A. L. Blechynden, wife o. the manager of the New Engineering and Shipbuilding Company.

Following the launching which was witnessed by a large gathering several addresses were delivered and refreshments were served. The speech on behalf of the builders was given by Mr. A. U. Burkill in the absence of the managing director and the response to this was made by Mr. Stickwest, Norwegian Consul. Mrs. Blechynden, who christened the vessel, was the recipient of gifts both from the builders and from the new owners of The Dux, a jeweled diamond bar pin from Messrs. Brunsgaard, Kiosterud & Company, the owners, and another diamond bar pin from the builders.

DETAILS OF VESSELS

The s.s. Dux is the fifth of eight vessels of similar type and size which the New Engineering and Shipbuilding Works Ltd., are building for Norwegian owners.

The dimensions of the steamer are as follows:

Length over all 254'6"

Length between perpendiculars 242'6"

Beam 37'0"

Depth Moulded 17'0"

Deadweight carrying capacity 4,050 tons.

The vessel is built to meet the requirements of the highest class of the Norwegian Bureau Veritas and will be fitted with triple expansion surface condensing engines indicating about 1,100 h.p. and two cylindrical multitubular boilers constructed for a working pressure of 180 lbs. per square inch.

LARGE HATCHES

The vessel has very large hatches to facilitate the rapid handling of bulky cargo and will be provided with seven steam winches and tubular steel derricks. Electric lights will be fitted throughout the vessel with powerful clusters at each hatch.

The main engines, boilers and most of the auxiliary machinery are built in the shops of the New Engineering and Shipbuilding Works Ltd. and are ready for lifting on board. Immediately after the launching the vessel will be taken alongside the wharf under the sheerlegs to have the engines, boilers and auxiliary machinery placed on board.

MR. BURKILL SPEAKS

The address of Mr. A. W. Burkill was as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: In the absence of our Chairman of Directors I have been asked to propose the toast of good luck and success to the s.s. Dux and her owners.

"The Dux, which you all witnessed a short time ago glide so gracefully into the water is the fifth vessel built and engined at these works for the same owners, Messrs. Brunsgaard, Kiosterud and Co. of Norway, and it is a matter of considerable gratification to us to know that her sister ships the Hero, Hydra II, Henrik and Halvdan, all built in this yard are giving entire satisfaction. This is the highest compliment that can be paid to any shipbuilding yard, and it is a reflection of the individual and collective effort and ability of those concerned in their construction.

"Speaking on behalf of this company I may say we are very proud indeed of these happy results, portending we hope to further successes in similar if not larger undertakings of this nature.

SHIPBUILDING CENTER

"It seems to me that this is a fitting occasion to echo the sentiments expressed by Mr. Arnhold a few weeks ago when you honored us with your presence at the last launching ceremony, when he outlined to you the possibilities of Shanghai as a shipbuilding center. Well, looking back during the past five years we have witnessed really wonderful progress in this direction, and whilst there are those who will say such results are merely the force of circumstances brought about by war conditions, there are others of us who take a broader and much more hopeful view of the future of this industry feeling confident that the high standard of native labor, coupled with the assistance of modern machinery must necessarily have its reward in the production of increased tonnage and the gradual advancement of the engineering industry as a whole.

"I think it is safe to predict that the recognition which Shanghai has already gained in this regard, and of which this company has been no small contributor, is a sure indication for its future prosperity.

THANKS ALL CONCERNED

"Before concluding I would like to express our thanks to all those connected with the construction of the Dux and would specially mention the surveyors for the Norwegian Bureau Veritas, Messrs. Parker, Rielley and Simmons, as also the Owners' Supervising Engineer Mr. Lien and Messrs. O. Thoresen as representing the owners, all of whom have rendered very considerable assistance to the Builders.

"Ladies and Gentlemen. I will now ask you to join me in drinking good luck and a successful future to the Dux which toast I will couple with the name of Mr. Stickmest to Norwegian Consul General."

Davis Cup Final Will Be Played In New Zealand

Whatever tennis team wins the Davis Cup eliminating matches to be contested in England in July will play the challenge round, according to present indications, not in Australia, as has been generally expected, but in New Zealand.

Under a compact not yet sundered, New Zealand has the right to stage the match this year, in accordance with an Australasian agreement to accord one out of every three challenge rounds to which that country may be entitled to New Zealand.

Melbourne and Sydney had the 1912 and 1919 matches and it i now New Zealand's turn again.

South Africa's Davis Cup team will, it is understood, consist of G. H. Dodd (captain), L. Raymond, B. I. C. Norton and C. L. Winslow—the strongest combination South Africa has at its disposal.

The first three, all ex-airmen, participated in the Davis Cup matches last year, and made an excellent fight against England at Eastbourne. Since then all, and especially Mr. Norton, have improved. Mr. Winslow was in England in 1912 and took part in the Olympic outdoor competition at Stockholm, winning the gold medal both in singles and doubles. He will strengthen the team in doubles.

All the South African players, after competing at Wimbledon and in the Davis Cup, will proceed to Antwerp for the Olympic games. South Africa will meet Holland in the opening round of the Davis Cup matches and the winner will play Canada. South Africa's chances of reaching the final are regarded as bright.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."
J. E. SIMPSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."
F. GERALD BLATTNER, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."
J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble."
C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."

Second Announcement

The fact that this Administration has carried out the instructions of the Ministry of Communications and the terms of the agreement entered into by the Yu Fong S.S. Co. with the Ministry of Communications that the management of the "Hwah" line of steamers was to be transferred to the said Company has been already advertised in the local papers.

Adverting to the statement published today in the Chinese newspapers by the Yu Fong s.s. Co. to the effect that Accounts incurred in 1917 and 1918 have also been handed over to them, we must point out that the said Accounts consist of statements of accounts with vouchers for money received from the American Shipping Board on account of the s.s. "Hwah Jah" etc.

These accounts and vouchers were handed over to them for reference in order to enable them to deal with the American Shipping Board and to make up final report to the Ministry of Communications.

It is surprising to note that the Yu Fong S.S. Co. has inadvertently taken the matter to be a request for payment of old outstanding debts.

We hold receipt from the Yu Fong S.S. Co. for all documents regarding the transfer and the management of the "Hwah" line of steamers. These documents have never been taken back by us.

The Yu Fong S.S. Co. commencing from the 1st day of July, 1920, is therefore responsible for the management and accounts of the "Hwah" line of steamers.

Besides wiring the above facts to the Ministry of Communications, the public is hereby again notified.

Cotton Market

In their report dated July 3, Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld and Son write as follow:

China Cotton.—Since writing our last week's report the market has been keeping steady, due principally to the covering of shorts in the early positions. The new crop months have sympathised to some extent but without bringing about any increase in general business; the transactions being principally among professionals.

As to the August and September positions, we do not see anything to indicate any strength. Mills are well supplied with stocks and in addition export interests are nil whilst stocks held in the interior are more than ample to meet requirements up till the end of October.

As to the new crop, we think that although we are having a little more rain than necessary still if it clears up within the next forty-eight hours, the results will be more than beneficial.

From the above it will be seen that whatever views are entertained as to the ultimate course of prices, conservative policy appears to be desirable for the immediate future. The situation continues to hinge on future "weather" developments. Our own opinion is that chances for successful operations continue to lie on the Bear side.

"EXTRACTS OF CORRESPONDENCE"

Kiangsu Province, June 30.—The weather has been too cold and wet. What is required within the next three or four days is clear warm weather to finish chopping out and to free the crop from grass.

Yangtse Valley, June 25.—Weather a little too cool. Crop reports, however, are very favorable.

Shensi Province, June 15.—Weather fine. Crops progressing very favorably.

Shantung Province, June 27.—Dry and hot weather.

Chili Province, June 27.—Weather hot. Crop prospects are not so good. We need a few heavy showers in order to improve general conditions. Temperature 108 degrees in the shade.

Yarn.—Nothing bearish has come to light since our last report was issued. Our market during the interval continued steady to firm with a feeling of assurance that no weakness is likely to develop in this direction for some time to come. The new high levels to which prices have advanced show no visible effect on business.

Sampin has advanced 16 Yen during the last week. The following are the closing quotations:

Where Bryan Stands

ALTHOUGH William Jennings Bryan is far from being in control of the Democratic National Convention, he is nevertheless a powerful figure in it. A two-thirds vote is required in order to nominate a Democratic candidate for the presidency and while the Administration forces control a majority of the delegates they do not control two-thirds and therefore will have to listen to Mr. Bryan. The views of the famous Nebraskan as revealed in a recent speech are therefore of special interest at this time, for they serve to indicate the position he will take on the principal issues now confronting the convention. In the first place, it should be remembered that Mr. Bryan all along has stood for a compromise between the President and the Senate on the League and Treaty issue. He felt that the President ought to accept the proposed reservations rather than delay decision by making the matter a campaign issue. Mr. Bryan in the speech referred to said:

"I am in favor of the immediate and final ratification of the Peace Treaty with the reservations already agreed upon by a decisive majority of the entire Senate and by more than two-thirds of those favoring ratification. Any needed changes can be made in the League.

"No party, least of all the Democratic party, can afford to claim for a minority of the Senate the right to declare the policy of the nation.

"To deny ratification and make the treaty a partisan issue would be a crime against our own nation, which has pressing domestic problems to meet, and against the world that needs our counsel and advise in the League to save civilisation from the horrors of another war.

"I am in favor of electing our representatives to the League by popular vote, and believe that they should be instructed to favor the immediate admission of Germany to the League, the immediate reduction of armaments in all nations, and a referendum on war except in case of actual invasion. World peace is possible only on the basis of brotherhood.

"While the Senate wrangled over the phraseology of reservations, newly established republics were, and are now, threatened on one side with returning monarchy and on the other side with the chaos of bolshevism.

"Does the President know of the unrest in our own country and the reasons for it?

"Does he know that the antagonisms between capital and labor are growing and that the failure of the old parties to grapple successfully with this menace to industrial peace is swelling the ranks of Socialism?

"Does he know that the Governor of his own State is leading a revolt against an amendment to the Constitution ratified by forty-five States of the Union, including every Democratic State?

"Does he know that his own State and a number of other States are deliberately trying to nullify the Prohibition enforcement law, placed upon the statute books by the vote of more than two-thirds of the members of both houses? He cannot be indifferent to this attempt to overthrow the nation's greatest moral reform."

Mr. Bryan's attempt to keep the Treaty and the League from being made a presidential campaign issue has met with failure. There are other issues but at the present time the League is the paramount issue. And all the news indicates that the convention will follow the Wilson lead and demand ratification of it without the reservations. Mr. Bryan than will either have to support the Wilson policy or bolt the party and we do not believe that he would do the latter. He favors the League and the Treaty and only advocated the reservations because of his belief that only by accepting them could that issue be kept out of the campaign. There is a good chance therefore that the Democratic Party will emerge from the convention reunited and confident of victory.

JAPANESE EMPEROR'S HEALTH BETTER

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: In respect of an article in today's issue of THE CHINA PRESS, respecting the illness of His Majesty, the Emperor of Japan, I beg to inform you that His Majesty's health has greatly improved of late and he is at present having a rest at his villa in Numazu. The current rumor that the Emperor is in a critical condition is entirely baseless. I am, Yours faithfully,

A British Vision Of "An Irish Republic"

Ireland must have a republic "if she wants it," and it is time the people of England realised that sooner or later they may be forced to consent to the creation of such an independent state. This declaration comes not from an anti-British, but from an independent liberal British weekly, The New Statesman, which says that while an Irish Republic is "as yet a possibility only, not a probability, yet as such it must be faced, for until it is faced as one at least of the actually possible alternatives, we do not believe that any British Government will succeed in finding a better solution for the most desperate situation into which Irish affairs have been allowed to drift." This weekly does not suggest that the British electorate is ever likely to be persuaded that the creation of a republic is "a wise or a desirable method of satisfying Irish aspirations." It agrees with Lord Robert Cecil that any conceivable House of Commons is likely to be unanimously opposed to such a course. But it predicts that if developments in Ireland proceed on their present lines "a majority of some future, perhaps even the next, House of Commons may be still more profoundly opposed to all the practicable alternatives, and may thus be forced reluctantly to yield what they would never willingly give." Consider the state of affairs in Ireland today, this weekly says:

"It is a state of war—no less. In spite of the large army which we are maintaining over there, the Government has no power to maintain even a semblance of law and order. There is far less law and order in Ireland today than the Germans maintained in Belgium, for the Irish are not Belgians and the English soldier is not and never will be an adept in the science of 'frightfulness.' The Sinn-Feiners defy the law, and kill with impunity not only in country districts, but in the open streets of the capital itself. The Government, on the other hand, has been forced to discard the law, and to resort to a policy of wholesale arrests and imprisonment without any pretense of legal trials or even of courts martial. The police, as Lord Robert himself pointed out, are never allowed out in the daytime except in twos and threes, and even then they are sometimes shot. At night, when crime is most rampant, they are not allowed out at all. The armed forces of the Republic raid and pull down police barracks and enforce their own rules or laws. 'Practically the Government of Ireland in the south exists only on sufferance. No order of the Government, as I understand, can be carried out unless the Sinn-Fein authorities choose to permit it.' And every day the situation becomes worse."

Supposing this state of affairs continues, and there is little or no hope that it will not continue, we are told, and supposing the Irish refuse every ameliorative measure that is offered them, even full Dominion Home Rule, and the possibility of that becomes greater with each day of military repression, and suppose then that a Labor Government or a Liberal-Labor Coalition comes into power in England, which is "at least a possibility"—then what would happen? The New Statesman proceeds:

"Does any one imagine that such a government could or would attempt to continue indefinitely to rule Ireland by the present methods of crude and brutal military coercion? Yet it is clearly within the power of the Sinn-Feiners to make any other method impossible. A Labor Government might be as conciliatory as it chose, but the ultimate decision would still rest with the Irish people. They would have merely to ignore all blandishments and continue their present policy, and they would get their republic. We do not say that if a Labor Government came into power tomorrow it would necessarily be faced with the alternatives of continuing the present regime or sanctioning a republic, for we do not believe that the mass of even the Southern Irish are yet irrecoverably committed to the republican demand. What we do say is that if it should come to that choice, if it were clear that there was no middle course between unconditional withdrawal from Ireland and the prospect of an indefinite continuance of martial law, daylight assassinations, and hunger strikes, then there is no member either of the Labor party or of the Liberal party who could fail to choose, withdrawal, without eating every political principle which he had ever professed. In the last resort, subject peoples have an argument to which there is no reply save extermination, and the Sinn-Feiners have discovered that argument. They may be persuaded to abandon it; they can not be coerced. There is no move which even the most ruthless of militarists could devise which, if they are sufficiently determined, they can not counter."

The New Statesman does not believe that the Irish problem is insoluble or that it is impossible "to retain Ireland within the Empire by her own free will." The hatred of Englishmen which exists in Ireland is, "in one sense, terribly real, but in another it is purely fictitious." It is founded on no natural or temperamental antipathy, but "on a number of essentially accidental historical facts which have obscured the natural affinities, spiritual and intellectual, of the two races," and we read:

"Every one who knows Ireland knows also that if Ireland had been independent, it is hard to conceive any international conflict in which she would not have been our inseparable friend and ally. The tragedy of the present situation lies in the fact that it might be entirely transformed by so small an amount of courage and generosity. If we offer Ireland unconditional freedom we can win her. If we maintain our present indefensible and insensate policy of coercion we shall lose her—perhaps forever. That is the real alternative today. Ireland will never be a willing member of the British Commonwealth until she has been offered the free choice of complete independence if she so wills. We may reasonably attach conditions to the offer. We may insist that no decision shall be taken until a certain, perhaps prolonged, period shall have elapsed—long enough for the passions of today to have burned themselves out. But the ultimate choice must be perfectly free."

Irish Republic Coming, Says Lord Robert Cecil

BY LORD ROBERT CECIL

One of Great Britain's members of the Peace Conference and one of the leading statesmen of England. Lord Cecil, who is a Unionist, takes one of the English views of the Irish question.

The situation in Ireland is at least as serious, if not more so than at any time in the last 200 years.

I believe that the great secret of British accomplishment in the work of civilisation has been the supremacy of the law. That is the great weapon with which, in the olden days, the British fought kings with desire for power; it is the great bulwark at present against anarchy and revolution. It is the great guarantee of liberty. For that reason I regard it as the most sacred and important duty which the British Government can possibly carry out in any part of the dominions committed to their charge.

My great anxiety is due to the fact that the supremacy of the law no longer exists, even partially, in large districts of Ireland.

RECORD OF THE CRIMES

A return of the crimes committed in Ireland since January 1, 1919, up to April 1, 1920, shows that there were thirty-six murders and some seventy or eighty assaults, by way of firing on persons and so on. Altogether, the total of crimes, such as incendiary fires, injury to property, offences in connection with arms ammunition, explosives, threatening letters, etc., amounted to 1,089. By far the larger part was in Munster.

Unfortunately, the return does not show the crimes month by month; had it done so it would be seen that they have increased rapidly month by month. That increase has been still more rapid from the announcement by the Prime Minister of the new Home Rule bill.

I have been supplied with figures which show that, in the first three weeks of April no fewer than thirteen murders took place. So far as I can see, the rate of murder is still rising; recently it has been practically one murder a day.

That is a terrifically serious figure, and it is not only the number of murders, but their nature, which is so serious. There is the murder of the Lord Mayor of Cork—and it is quite irrelevant whether it was committed, as it was alleged by emissaries of the police or by Sinn Feiners. It was clearly the most astonishing murder that has been committed in a country supposed to be possessed of a civilised government.

There is also the murder of Alan Bell (of the staff of the Chief Secretary for Ireland), and of policemen shot down in the middle of the day, when people were looking on but no one of whom came forward either to help the men or to give evidence so that the criminals might be arrested.

FIGURES ARE APPALING

That condition is the complete collapse of the elaborate system of civilisation which guarantees the personal safety of citizens.

IN FEAR OF LIVES

Everywhere one reads of people who have been threatened sending for the police and being put off on some plea or other and no police being sent. People go in fear of their lives; houses are barricaded at night; churches completely shut up; children afraid to go to school. That is one of the most serious symptoms of the complete paralysis of the British Government in large districts in the south and west of Ireland.

Over wide tracts the police are being withdrawn from the rural districts and being concentrated in towns. It is very little wonder that, in these districts, not only is the criminal law in abeyance, but the civil law, too. There are institutions that call themselves "Sinn Fein Courts," but none of the King's courts are in active and effective operation in many of these districts.

There have been occasions—as at Milltown—when the mob took entire possession of a city or town. Milltown, according to one account, was absolutely in the hands of a self-chosen committee, who ruled it absolutely despotically a whole day. They did not allow any work to be done. They did not allow any one to ride a bicycle in the streets. And this was in a civilised country!

I do not know what the explanation was, but I would like to ask what the British military were doing, why such a grave usurpation of law was allowed, and why law abiding citizens were delivered over to tyranny for twenty-four hours?

There is no security that this sort of tyranny will not be carried out for much longer periods than twenty-four hours if those who are directing the affairs of Ireland choose to make the attempt. It is impossible to exaggerate the seriousness of the state of things that exists and the responsibility of the British Government for permitting it.

I cannot help feeling that there has been a want of resource, to put it mildly, in the government of Ireland. I cannot believe that these spectacular police and military raids in the middle of the night, by which large numbers of people have been arrested all over the country and imprisoned—sometimes, I dare say, on good grounds, but I cannot believe that the grounds always have been good—have done good.

SOME ARE INNOCENT

I cannot believe that that is a form of repression that has ever shown, or is ever likely to show, good results. It is not the right way of dealing with the situation, for the excellent reason that though some of the people they get are guilty, some, I expect, are quite innocent.

Soldiers should not be used for police work, but they should be used to protect the police and, of course, to prevent anything like a rising.

As far as possible, the British Government must demilitarise their administration and make it a very strong civil government.

The crimes in Ireland are justified by the men who commit them on the ground that they are at war. It is not war. This is anarchy, promoted by crime. It must be dealt with on that footing.

I think that England will never settle the Irish question except in accordance with the wishes of the Irish people. That is the great truth we have to realise. It is no use offering them something they do not want, and still less to force it upon them. But in order to give them a fair judgment and enable them to state freely what they really want, Great Britain must give them guarantees and security of orderly government.

The present state of things is a scandal and a disgrace to the British name. That such a state of things should exist in the British Empire is an intolerable humiliation. It means not only that we English have failed in our duty—we who have prided ourselves on the fact that we always brought order, good government and justice to every country we went to—but here at England's very door is a country where all these words are a satire on what actually exists.

It means that we have deserted and are failing in our duty towards a large body of law-abiding citizens; it means that we are creating a danger to the whole British Empire. For if we allow this state of things to go on in one part of the Empire we are offering a premium to the fomenters of disorder in every other part.

What is the policy of the British Government in these circumstances? Are they prepared to abandon all preconceived ideas rather than permit this state of thing to go on any longer? Let them be perfectly certain of this, that they are drifting through anarchy and humiliation towards an Irish Republic.

This is the only logical conclusion of this state of things unless it is repressed. If the British Government believes that an Irish Republic would be a great danger to the British Empire and this is unthinkable, they must justify that belief by showing that they are able and willing to govern that country as it ought to be governed in a civilised land.

A Pan-American League Of Nations

A Pan-American League Of Nations can most naturally come into being through the Monroe Doctrine, according to Dr. Baltazar Brum, the President of Uruguay. Far from criticising that Doctrine, as some other South-Americans have done, he claims that it originated in South America, that it has saved his continent from foreign rapacity, and that it can now be used to bind us all together in friendly solidarity. He also thinks that such a league could co-exist with the League of Nations without difficulty, as it would simply be "a district assembly with similar views." The harmonious and just action of the American Leauge, as he terms it, would keep off European intervention from American affairs, and would be the instrument of a foreign policy that would make our hemisphere a force in the destinies of the world. The triumph of its ideals of justice and democracy, he predicts, will insure small countries from being the victims of the gross injustices of larger nations as they have been in the past. In an address at the University of Montevideo, which is published by the Buenos Aires Herald, Dr. Brum itemised the bases of the American League of Nations as follows:

"1. All American countries will consider as a direct offense to all that which might be inflicted, by extra-continental nations, on the rights of any of them, which offense shall require a uniform and common retaliation.

"2. Without prejudice to an adherence to the League of Nations, an American League should be formed on the basis of absolute equality of all the associate countries.

"3. No question, which, according to the laws of the country, should be judged by its judges or courts, can be taken out of its national jurisdictions by way of diplomatic appeals, and these would only be admitted in case of a flagrant injustice.

"4. Any son of a foreigner born in the American continent will be considered a citizen of the country he is born in, excepting the case where, having attained majority and finding himself in the country of his parents, he should choose to belong to that country.

"5. All controversies, of any nature whatsoever, and which for any reason might arise among American countries, shall be submitted to the arbitration of the League, when these can not be solved directly or by friendly mediation.

"6. Should any American country have any controversy with he League of Nations it can ask for the co-operation of the American League."

In answer to those countries which object to the Monroe Doctrine as serving only the interests of the United States and as being too much like a protectorate over them, President Brum avers that such a statement is devoid of all seriousness. Any inconveniences of the Monroe Doctrine would be obviated, he believes, if the other American countries made a similar declaration to Monroe's, binding themselves to intervene in favor of any American country, including the United States, engaged in war with an overseas country in defense of their rights. President Brum points out that—

"Such a declartion, incorporated in the international obligations of each country, would create a situation of great dignity, placing them on a footing of perfect moral equality with the United States. Its practical application would be this: If Uruguay, for example, was attacked by a European country, the United States and the rest of the American countries would intervene in its defense, and if the country attacked were the United States, Uruguay with its brother-countries of the continent would join in action against the unjust aggressor. In this manner, the Monroe Doctrine, proclaimed as a standard of foreign policy of the United States, would become a defensive alliance between all the American countries, founded on a deep sentiment of solidarity with mutual obligations and reciprocal advantages to all concerned."

An actual instance of the working-out of such political principles is afforded by President Brum in his reminiscence of the Monroe Doctrine in action during the world-war. He relates that—

"The German peril to the territorial integrity of Latin America already planned in 1914 and in 1917 was accentuated in 1918, during the German offensive of March and April, and the entrance of the United States in the war came to have in his manner the meaning of an anticipated application of the Monroe Doctrine, taking effect not only in its own defense, but also in that of all the American countries threatened by the ambitions of Pan-Germanism.

"Uruguay understood and appreciated the gravity of that historic hour and did not hesitate in joining North America.

"Owing to the state in which the European countries remain after the war, it may be said that fear of invasion by them in America has been removed for many years.

"But is that sufficient reason for us to take no interest in the future, and turn away from the Monore Doctrine, with the pretext that now it is unncessary? I believe that that should not be the case. I believe that today, more than ever, we should reveal our foresight, searching for formulas that may assure forever peace and the full independence of American countries. To attain this, it is necessary to intensify and fan into flame our sentiments of solidarity . . . . . .

"In each American country and by each of their national heroes there are similar declarations which are fundamentally the same as the Monroe Doctrine, and these declarations were not platonic, as they were strong enough to gather together nearly all the warriors of America on the highest points of the Andes, and there with cyclopic efforts secure the emancipation of all."

"One leads where many follow."

You Have A Message To Give

By Angela Morgan

You have a message to give to the world;
Deep in your being its pattern is curled.
Oak in the acorn and seed in the pod,
Roots pushing up through the passionate sod,
All gathered close in the bosom of God.
Down in the deeps where your spirit is stirred,
Lo, you may find the mysterious Word—
That which your Maker has willed you to say,
You may discover and speak it today!

You have a message, I have a message,
All have a glorious message to give.
Why should you wonder and why should you fear?
Cry it aloud that the people may hear,
Cry it abroad that the hungry may live—
You have a message to give!

You have a message to give—do you know it?
Love at the heart of you yearns to bestow it.
Shackled and burdened and worn you may be,
But utter the word, and your spirit is free.
You, with your suffering, cruel to bear;
You, with your problem and you with your care,
Caught like a bird in this prison of clay,
Find but the message God wants you to say.
Fettered and fevered and hurt though you are,
Speak, and you shatter the prisoning bar,
Speak, and you soar to the uttermost star!

You have a message to give, do you hear it?
Scorn of the multitude, why should you fear it?
Down in the depths where you suffer and bleed,
Cry it aloud that the whole world may heed.
Only your spirit may know as you know—
You and you only that word may bestow.
Speak with your might while you suffer and live—
You have a message to give!

The Three Roads That Heat Travels—How Radiation Of Sun Resembles That Of Hot Stove In Being Transmitted By Vibrations

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

(Eminent Astronomer and Writer on Problems of Scientific Interest)

"We have been taught to believe that our earth is heated by heat radiated from the sun. I want to know how this heat is radiated—or is it radiated? Is it radiated in much the same manner as heat is radiated from a hot stove?—L. L. H., Drakesville, Ia."

I suppose that you want to know both how the heat arises in the sun and how it is transmitted across space to the earth. The radiation of the sun resembles that of a hot stove in being transmitted by vibrations of what is called "the ether," but the source of the sun's heat is different from that of the stove's heat.

The stove is composed of solid iron heated by the combustion, or burning, of coal or wood. The sun is composed of substances, including iron, which are not in the solid but in the gaseous or vaporous state, and their heat is derived not from burning but, according to the theory that has generally been accepted in modern times, from the effects of tremendous compression, under which the stupendous body of the sun gradually shrinks and is thereby intensely heated.

To illustrate the cause of this heat of compression you may take the scientific toy called the "fire syringe," which consists of a tube, say a foot long and a quarter of an inch interior diameter, filled with ordinary air, having a close-fitting piston, and furnished at the bottom with a bit of tinder. If you suddenly drive the piston down by one strong, quick push or blow, the tinder will be ignited.

The heat required to produce this surprising effect is derived from the transformation of the energy used to force down the piston into a vibratory motion of the molecules of the powerfully compressed air, and this vibratory motion is what we call heat.

RESULTS OF CONTRACTION

In the sun the compression is produced by gravitational attraction drawing all the particles of that gigantic globe, 886,000 miles in diameter, toward their common center. It has been shown mathematically that a contraction of the sun's diameter of only 250 feet per year would suffice to produce and maintain its tremendous temperature of 6,000 or 7,000 degrees centigrade.

Now, for its radiation. There is here a chance for a play upon words which persons who suppose that sort of mental gymnastics to be reasoning, never fail to seize. The heat is not heat while it is traversing space, and neither is the light of the sun light of similar circumstances. Both are simply radiant energy conveyed through the ether in the form of vibrations.

When they strike the earth, or some other body capable of being set into molecular vibration by them, they produce the sensations which we call light and heat. In like manner the atmospheric waves which produce the sensation of sound when they strike our ears are not really sound, but the cause of sound. But it is a waste of time and of mentation to dispute over such things. It was that kind of folly that muddled the minds of all men in olden days.

The radiant heat of the sun, then, comes across the 93,000,000 miles separating the sun from the earth in the form of vibrations in an ideal medium called the ether. We cannot see, or feel, or taste, or prove by any direct means of observation that such a thing as the ether exists. Moreover, we are compelled to ascribe to it properties that seem utterly contradictory, and at variance with all our experience of actual things, and the only reason for holding on to the hypothesis that there is an ether is that it serves to account in a wonderfully satisfactory manner for many fundamental things which we cannot otherwise explain.

A WORKING THEORY

It is a good "working hypothesis." But scientists are quite ready to abandon the ether theory as soon as a better one can be devised. Some think that this has already been done. To a certain extent Newton's original idea that light and heat and other forms of solar radiation consisted of infinitesimal particles shot through space, instead of waves in a vibrating medium, has been revived, and such infinitesimal entities of traveling energy are now called "quanta." But this modern theory of "bullets of energy" is still in its infancy.

In the meantime we must be content with the long-accepted idea of science that the hypothetical, and certainly extremely serviceable, ether not only conveys the vibrations of solar energy from the sun to the earth, but likewise serves to carry similar vibrations, producing light, heat, electric effects, etc., from other sources of radiant energy, such as electric lamps, hot stoves, and so on.

You should not confuse the heat sent out from the stove in the form of radiant heat with that which travels through the air in the form of heat of convection. The heat is the same in its nature, but the methods of conveyance are different.

Every hot body radiates heat, in a manner essentially similar to the sun's radiation. But it also imparts that to any medium surrounding it that is capable of absorbing it, such as air or water, and heat thus distributed is said to be carried by convection. A third method of heat conveyance is by conduction as when the handle of a poker becomes hot by the spread of heat through the iron.

The Value Of Exercise

BY BRICE BELDEN, M. D.

The functions of the heart and lungs are intimately connected. Proper development of the muscles of the body generally goes along with a strongly developed set of respiratory muscles and a strong and enduring heart.

The function of respiration is a great aid to the heart in maintaining the circulation, each inspiration and expiration forcing blood, as well as air, into and out of the chest. This aids the entire general circulation. A well-developed chest, with wide respiratory excursions, is therefore a great aid to the heart in its work.

Cycling, rowing and running are all excellent exercises, if not overdone. Running is one of the best of all exercises, because the chest is not held rigidly as a base for the attached muscles, but is free and unrestrained in its motions.

In bicycle riding the breathing must be through the nose, as, in fact, it should be in other forms of exercise; but in the case of this particular exercise especial care is required since if the breathing is shallow and the chest too rigid, heart strain is likely to occur. The breathing must be deep and full, else dilation of the heart may permanently weaken that organ.

All exercises providing unrestrained and easy motions are preferable to feats of strength and endurance. Such exercises are sparring, vaulting, handball and general calisthenics ("army setting-up drill"). No exercise should be continued until it becomes a physical strain.
